(54) BROADCAST RECEIVING FACILITY AND DIVERSITY RECEIVING SYSTEM

(57)Abstract:

PROBLEM TO BE SOLVED: To provide a technology which enables broadcasting reception with a diversity technology by using an existing broadcast receiving facility without installing additional signal cables.

SOLUTION: A broadcast receiving facility is equipped with more than two antennas that receive a broadcast wave of the same frequency band, a first conversion means that converts, at least, one of frequency bands for feed signals fed through the antenna into the frequency band which is different from the received frequency band, a mixing means that mixes the feed signals, the frequencies of which are converted, and the feed signals from the antenna, the frequencies of which are not converted, and a feed line that transfers the feed signals output from the mixing means to an image receiving site. The broadcast receiving facility is also equipped with a distributing means that distributes the feed signals transferred with the feed line to the feed signals of which frequencies are converted and to the feed signals of which frequencies are not converted, and a second conversion means that converts the feed signals being distributed, the frequencies of which are converted, to the feed signal, the frequency band of which is the receiving frequency band.
